

Bader Gateway 2011

The entire world community is acting at various levels to rescue Somalia, which suffers the scourge of wars, famine and conflict. The country is plagued by a real disaster caused by the worst drought in decades, resulting in decimated crops and livestock and threatening nearly 11 million people, a third of whom are children. An estimated one million people there suffer from acute malnutrition.

In light of these alarming facts and the accelerating pace of the disaster, despite the ongoing large relief efforts, it is hard to keep a count of victims, particularly in southern Somalia, which makes all of us largely responsible for the lives lost in this human catastrophe.

Your role in mitigating the effects of the disaster on the Horn of Africa residents

In "Bader " the Gateway of Islamic Relief, Da'awa and Journey, we believe in the need to engage every individual in this nation, no matter how great or small their role might be, guided by the values and principles of our great religion, which considers that Muslims are brothers and their mutual love, mercy and compassion resemble the organs of the body in that if one of these organs is affected by disease, all the body suffers fever and sleeplessness.

Muslims share the responsibility of supporting and helping each other, especially the vulnerable among them, in a way that translates into real action on the ground the Quranic verse: "The faithful are brothers". Having said that, we call on everyone to contribute through volunteering, donating, raising awareness or/and praying so as to mitigate the effects of these disasters on the inhabitants of the Horn of Africa. This contribution may take different forms and shapes, depending on your professional background:

- Advocates and journalists can help raise awareness among people about this humanitarian situation, urge people to provide material assistance and keep the issue alive through conventional and electronic media.
- Medical staff and medical and pharmaceutical companies can help improve the health situation in Somalia through volunteering field work by signing up with humanitarian relief organizations and the provision of vaccines, medicines and whatever it takes to face the diseases and epidemics in the affected areas and refugee camps.
- Traders can contribute financially and offer in-kind assistance and logistic support to facilitate the mission of volunteering organizations and procedures of shipping and transportation.
- The general public can donate whatever they can. Regardless of the size of this donation, even the smallest contribution can save lives and prevent starvation.

How can you help

Given the important role and significant involvement of organizations of Islamic relief in facilitating the path of philanthropy, We, in Bader, advise our Muslim brothers and sisters to cooperate with the below listed organizations, as they have been chosen according to specific criteria, including their effectiveness, transparency and track record of achievement. What makes these organizations more special is that the administrative overhead costs are far lower than those spent by UN organizations and others, which means that a much higher percentage of the donations goes to the actual beneficiaries.
